

Health and safety services

The health and safety landscape is changing. Recent additions have included:

- The Health and Safety Offences Act 2008 which raised the maximum fines that can be imposed in the lower courts and gives high courts and magistrates the power to imprison employers for a greater number of offences.
- The Corporate Manslaughter Act 2007 and The Health and Safety Offences Act 2008 which, contrary to popular belief, did not impose any new requirements, but simply made it easier to punish a company and its executives.
